Should your chartering plans involve more than 12 guests and you would like to accommodate them all on one yacht, relatively few vessels can satisfy your need. One of the few that can is the newly launched Annaliesse, which provides accommodation and facilities for 36 guests extending over a vast 2,400 metres square of deck area.

You can arrive in style by helicopter, alighting on the landing pad on her upper deck – an area that can also be converted into a disco. Other open areas comprise a private foredeck for the master suite, alfresco dining on the bridge deck for the full complement of guests, a relaxation area on the main deck aft and a sun deck complete with a spa pool, huge sunbathing cushions, bar and barbecue.

Inside, Annaliesse provides 18 spacious staterooms. The regally proportioned master suite offers an American king-sized bed, 180-degree views through panoramic windows, a 1.07 metre plasma screen, walk-in wardrobes, a marble-lined bathroom with a two-person spa bath and shower compartment, a private office and an adjoining twin bedroom. The remaining 16 guest rooms include two further doubles and two twin rooms on the upper deck, a VIP suite and a stateroom adapted for disabled guests on the bridge deck, and ten suites on the main deck, which also offers a huge sitting and dining room. One of the main attractions aboard is the lower deck spa area. Set around a marble-lined room with a central pool are two more spa rooms with adjoining steam rooms and saunas – for male and female use respectively – while a further area offers a beauty parlour, a massage room, a hairdressing salon and a children's creche. Other facilities include a cinema and watersports equipment, and should anyone fall ill or suffer a scrape, there is also a two-bed medical centre. Shortly to be joined by her sistership Alysio, Annaliesse comes complete with a crew of 34 and is available for charter at a rate of $ 120,000 per day.
